

Protect your health and boost your energy through natural ingredients

L-arginine is a vital amino acid that is best known for its cardiovascular benefits. In the body, L-arginine is converted to nitric oxide, which relaxes the arteries and regulates blood vessel tone and flexibility. This reduces stress on the heart, helps maintain already normal blood pressure levels and blood thickness, and improves circulation and overall cardiovascular function.

Guarana seed extract comes from the seeds of Paullinia cupana, which naturally contain caffeine. This energy enhancing ingredient is well known for its beneficial effects on maintaining alertness, improving cognitive capacity, and increasing physical performance.

Vitamin B complex is a group of 7 water soluble vitamins that need to be replenished on a daily basis. This need becomes increasingly important for those who are physically active or under stress. B-vitamins fulfill specific roles within the body to complete chemical reactions that generate energy. The effectiveness of these vitamins increases when taken together.

Vitamin C is an antioxidant that fights the negative effects of free radicals in the body. During exercise, or any rigorous activity, free radicals are produced that can cause cellular damage. Having vitamin C present in the body will enable the neutralization of this adverse reaction. In some populations, getting high levels of vitamin C may help improve physical performance and muscular strength.

Inulin is a prebiotic ingredient, meaning it's resistant to digestion in the stomach and small intestine. This feature enables it to reach the colon undigested, where it can selectively stimulate growth and/or metabolism in effective bacteria. This can lead to changes in levels of gut hormones called incretins which help clear glucose from the blood and into tissues where it can be used for energy.
